Evil Wins When Good Men Walk Away

Where were you and where was I
When for help young children cried?
Where were you and where was I

There must be a reason why,
Wise men say,
Evil wins when good men walk away.
Don't you talk of history?
What was then will never be,
Time has moved on, life has changed.

Every wrong will now be right.

We have been talking about the evils of child labour for the last 10 years in this country. But the number of working children seems to be increasing. Instead of building up public opinion against child labour and for compulsory primary education, we are still talking about child labour as being necessary for the survival of the family. The debate has not changed in the last 10 years.

The result is that children continue to work in the most hazardous conditions and compulsory education is still a dream. The presence of child labour in hazardous industries is against all human rights. If children are not dying in explosions, they are dying a slow but sure death in the glass, brassware, lock, slate, balloon, brick-kiln and other industries.
